Code of Conduct

Internationalism and solidarity are fine and long-standing principles of the labour movement. They are based on the understanding that all people are equal and deserve mutual respect at all levels. Any behaviour that creates conflict is considered unacceptable to the Global Labour University (GLU).

As trade unionists and social activists we should treat one another with mutual respect, cooperation and understanding. The GLU neither condones nor tolerates behaviour that undermines the dignity or self-esteem of any individual or creates an intimidating, hostile or offensive environment.

Discriminatory speech or conduct based on race, ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation, age, class, or religion will not be tolerated among participants of the GLU. Neither will harassment (using real or perceived power to abuse, devalue or humiliate) be tolerated. Discrimination and harassment focus on characteristics that make us different; and they reduce our capacity to work together on shared concerns.

The GLU's policies and practices reflect a commitment to equality. Students and staff must be mindful that everyone be treated with dignity, equality and respect
